

Welcome to Harmony Arboretum

The Harmony Gardens have an array of beautiful flowers for your viewing and photography pleasure. Walk through, take notice of the garden art and the different ways the plants are used.

This is the little prairie house of the Children's Learning Garden. It gives the kids a chance to water plants, dig in the dirt, play dress up in period clothes, and see what kind of plants were used in prairie times.

The new Shade House . . . Planting has begun!

Children's Learning Garden

Gives kid's a lot of space to roam, learn and have fun. From the Chipmunk Tunnel, to the sensory garden, and the maze there are many things to do and places to explore!

Tah-Dah!
The Chipmunk
Tunnel shows kids what it looks and feels like to a chipmunk that is underground.

Many wild birds, animals and amphibians make Harmony Arboretum their home. This is a female Killdeer sitting on her nest. She has four eggs that she is hatching. While we have school groups at Harmony for the TOAD Teaching Outdoor Awareness & Discovery, we place a little protective fence around her so nobody bothers her.

In the pond area, many different species utilize the water for their survival. Many frogs make the pond their home and even pollinators will come down to drink from the edge.

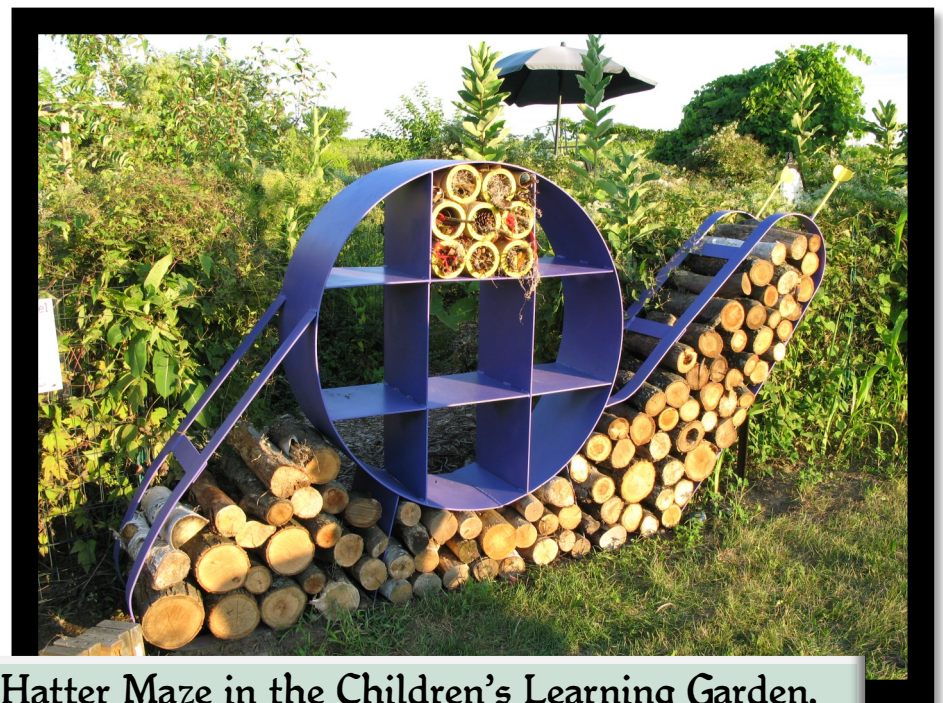

Once a year we hold a Prairie Hike for people to learn about prairies and how to get started with native plants. You don't have to wait until the hike to stroll through the prairie, you can go and check it out anytime. Just keep on the trail . . .

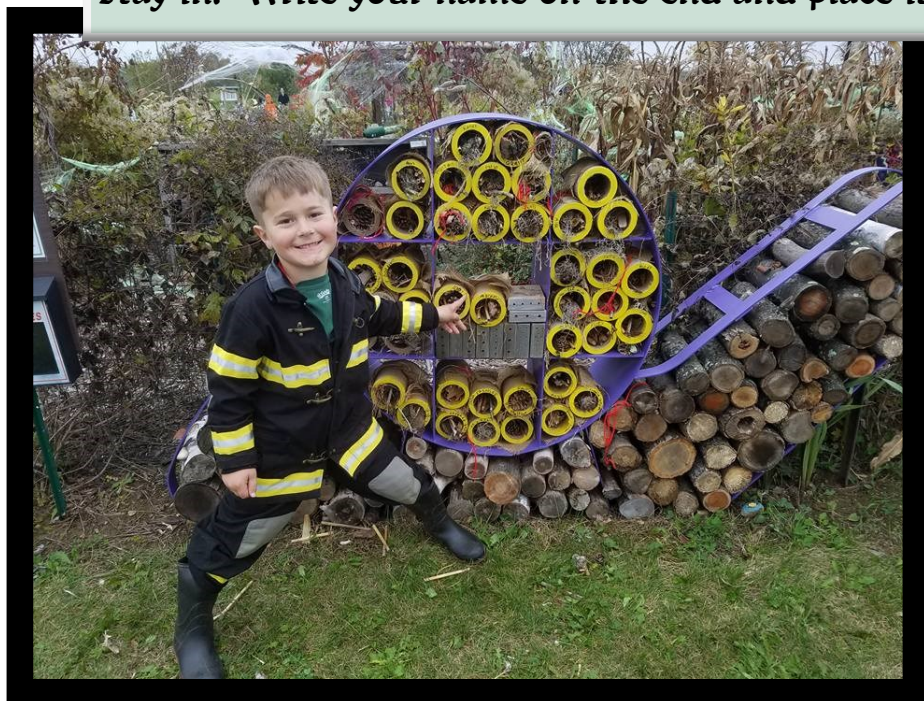

There is an Enabling Garden at Harmony Arboretum. This is to show how people with special needs can still get out into the garden and grow things.

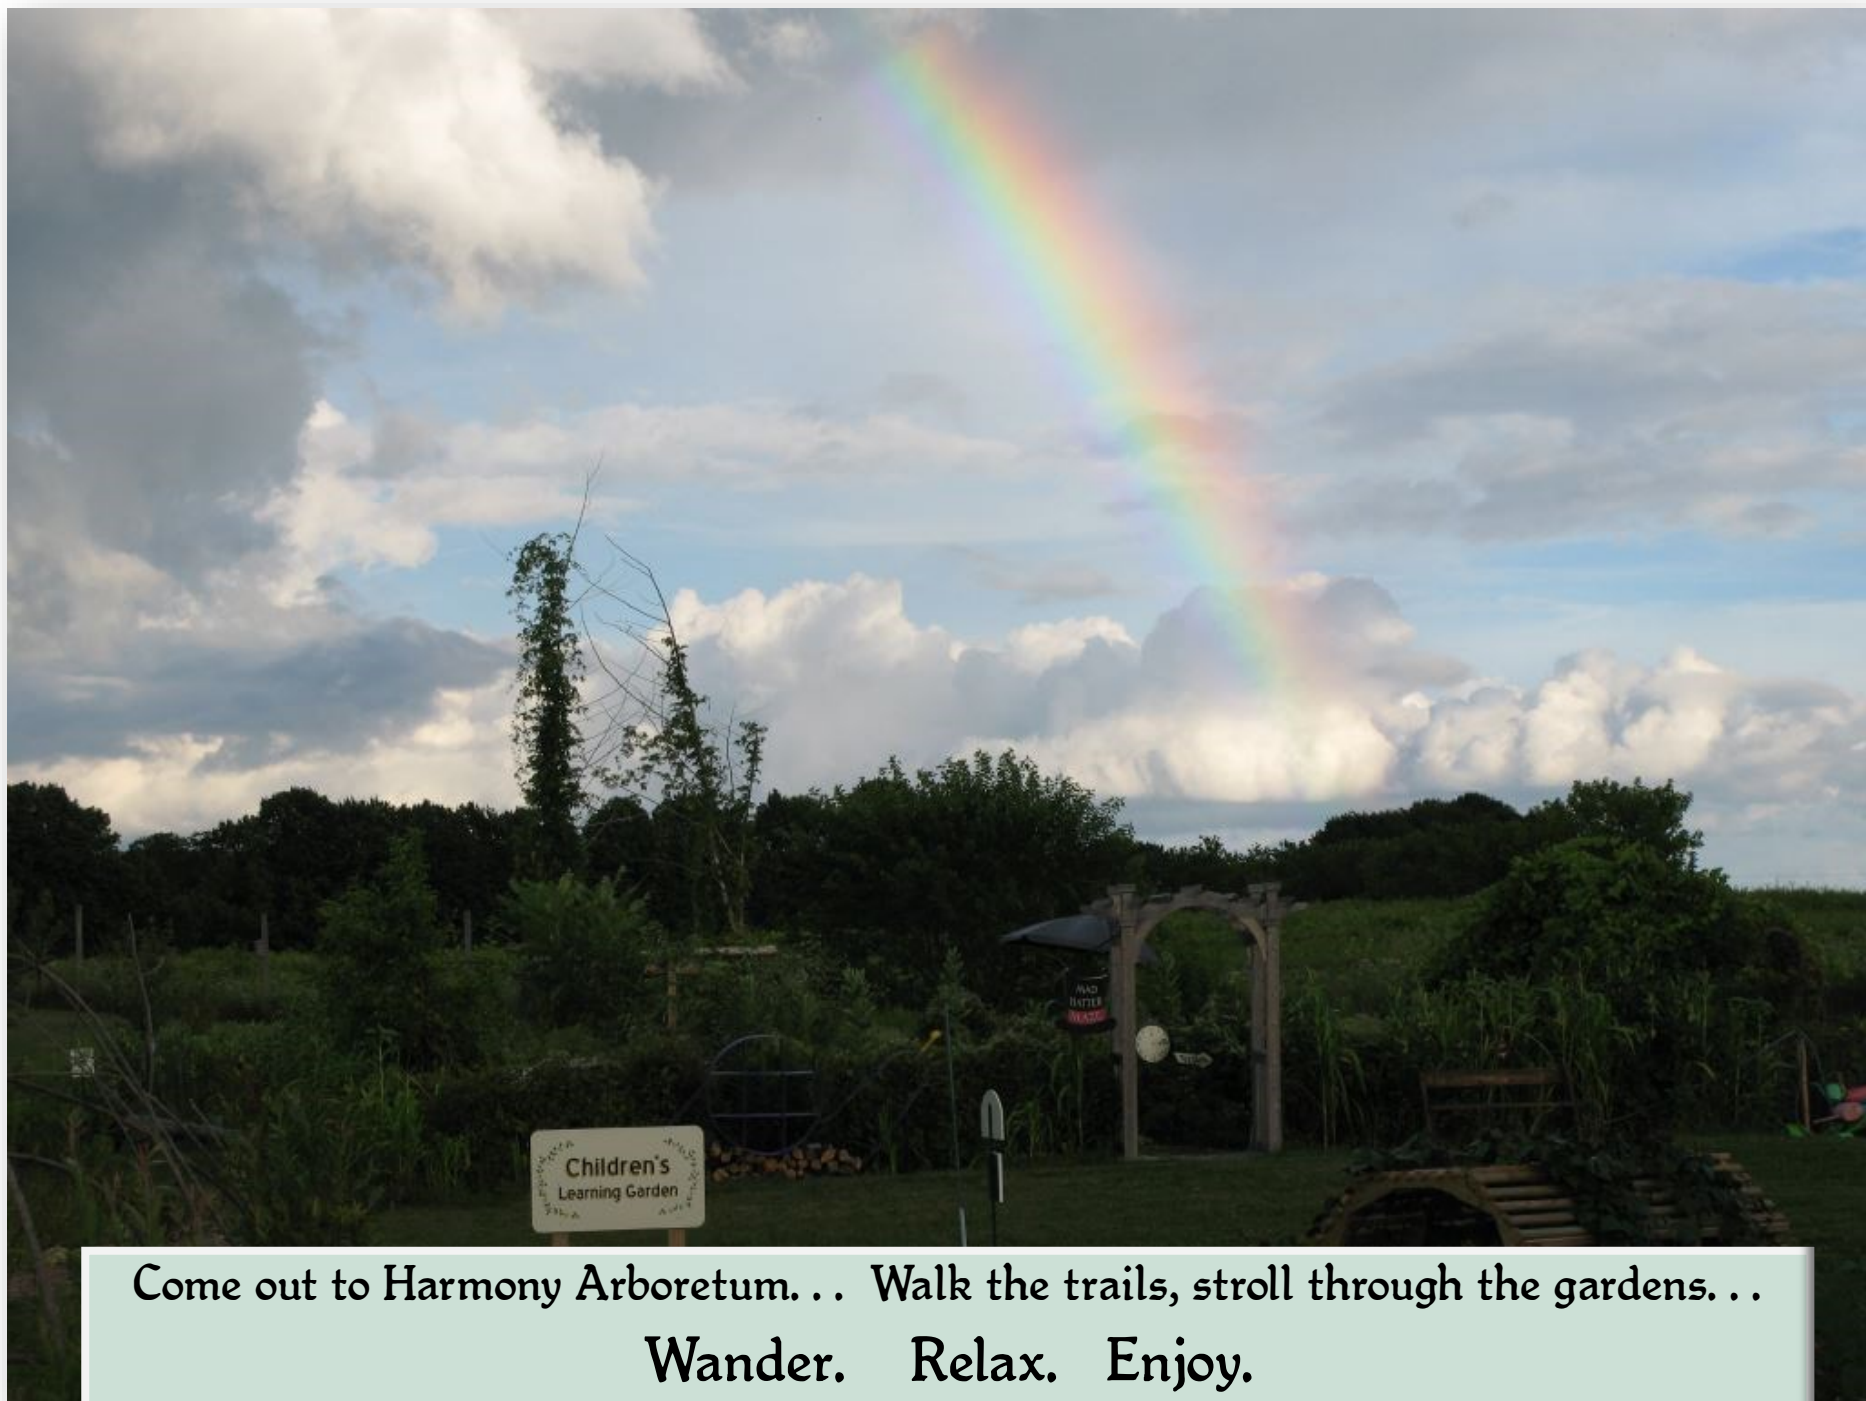

There is a Insect Hotel located in front of the Mad Hatter Maze in the Children's Learning Garden. Behind the sign for the hotel, there are supplies for you to make your own "room" for the insects to stay in. Write your name on the end and place it in the Snail.

Every year, the second weekend in October, the Northern Lights Master Gardeners and the UW-Extension hold the Halloween Family Fun Fest. It is from 2 to 5 pm and is a family oriented event for kids. Free—but do accept food donations for area pantry's.

Come out to Harmony Arboretum. . . Walk the trails, stroll through the gardens. . .
Wander. Relax. Enjoy.
